01 The 2-minute habit

SMALL AND EASY BEATS LONG AND RARE

1. Same time every day
   Most people journal before bed. Pick a time and keep it. The habit matters more than the length.

2. Mood and energy first
   Two clicks. Even on days you write nothing else, your month chart keeps filling in.

3. One win
   Something you did, however small: you cooked, you called a friend, you went outside.

4. One thank you
   One person, moment or thing you're grateful for today.

5. More only if you want
   Open the entry and answer the daily questions when you have time. No pressure.

TIP Add the journal to your phone’s home screen. Writing in bed takes 2 minutes.

02 4 ways to journal

PICK THE ONE THAT FITS TODAY

Brain dump

Write everything on your mind for 5 minutes, without stopping. Then close it.

Three good things

Write 3 things that went well today and why they happened.

Letter

Write to someone (or your future self). You never have to send it.

One question

Pick one prompt and write 3 lines. Done.

Snapshot

Describe one moment with your 5 senses: what you saw, heard, smelled, felt.

Tiny plan

Write the one thing that would make tomorrow better.

SOMETHING TO WRITE FOR EVERY DAY

04 Prompts for every mood

😄 On a good day

- What made today good, and how can I do it again?
- Who do I want to thank?
- What am I proud of?
- What do I want to remember?

😔 On a low day

- What do I need right now?
- What is one small kind thing I can do for myself?
- What is still okay today?
- Who can I talk to?

😣 When stressed

- What exactly is worrying me?
- What part can I control?
- What is one next step?
- What can wait until tomorrow?

😐 On a normal day

- What surprised me today?
- What did I learn?
- What made me smile?
- What will I do differently tomorrow?
